An aerial photograph of a large industrial complex, likely a wool processing factory, situated in a valley. The complex consists of numerous large, multi-story buildings with flat roofs, arranged in a somewhat rectangular layout. A prominent road or railway line runs along the right side of the complex. The surrounding landscape is hilly and covered with dense vegetation. In the foreground, there are some smaller buildings and a body of water. The overall scene depicts a significant industrial presence in a rural or semi-rural area.

INTRODUCTION

1938-9 PATTERN BOOK . . . Michael Nairn & Co. (Australia) Pty. Ltd. commend this book to their many friends in the Australian Floorcovering Trade and trust that it will be of service in stimulating interest in Australian-produced Linoleums.

DISTINCTIVE PATTERNS . . . A special staff of designers, with world wide experience, is employed in this Australian factory. The distinctive patterns of Jaspés and Marbles, together with No. 2 and No. 3 quality Printed Linoleums, shown in the following pages, have been carefully selected from thousands of colourings and designs with a view to meeting every Floorcovering requirement of the Australian Trade. There is a suitable grade for every requirement, from the humblest home to practically every class of public and private building. This wide range of linoleums may be used to advantage to combine not only first-rate appearance with comfort and durability, but, further, to enhance every type of interior decoration. Thus, the flooring can be in complete harmony with the surroundings.

MANUFACTURE AND HYGIENIC QUALITIES . . . The Australian Laboratories are never idle, and continuous experiments are carried out before actual manufacture takes place. It is not generally known that scientists have proved that the oxidised linseed oil incorporated in linoleum recipes exerts a strong bactericidal action. Consequently, these floorcoverings are both antiseptic and aseptic.

QUALITY AND SATISFACTION . . . Consumers all over the world recognise and accept the brand "Nairn's" as the guide to satisfaction and a guarantee of quality. Customers know that these goods are backed by the honesty and integrity of a reputable manufacturing organisation. This confidence has grown from years of favourable consumer experience.

AUSTRALIAN PRODUCT . . . Michael Nairn & Co. (Australia) Pty. Ltd. are pioneers of the Linoleum industry in Australia. Their goods are made as far as possible from Australian materials and by Australian labour. They feel that distributors will co-operate, knowing that every effort made to maintain and promote the sale of Australian products will be reflected in increased prosperity to the country.

LINOLEUM MAINTENANCE

Wash as required with ordinary household soap and water, using only as much water at a time as is necessary for cleanliness. Water will not injure the surface of linoleum but may cause damage both to the floor boards and to the back of the cloth if allowed to soak in the joins or at the edges. The use of a scrubbing brush on printed linoleum should be avoided.

Polishing with an accredited floor polish saves much labour and increases the life of linoleum. The polishing must be done thoroughly at the beginning to give the best labour-saving results. It is recommended to use a little polish (too much would defeat its object by collecting dust) and, after leaving it for a few minutes, rub it dry. If the polishing cloth does not rub easily over the surface, or if it is at all inclined to stick, there is either too much polish or it has not dried sufficiently to give the best results. This is important.

A further application in a week or two will provide a skin that will be easily cleaned with a mop, either dry or damp as may be necessary.

The floor must be clean and dry before applying polish. This, also, is important. Spirit varnish should not be used as a means of surfacing linoleum as it tends to wear patchy in traffic or become white where there is any friction. Floor polish is not so easy to apply, but it gives infinitely better results.

All linoleum tends to become harder and more wear-resisting after a few months of use and exposure to the air. Any little extra care taken during that period will be well repaid.

WARNING.—Soaps containing strong alkali are injurious to all linoleum because they tend to soften the material. Even the mildest soap should be used sparingly. Cleaning compounds of the porcelain scouring type contain abrasives harmful to linoleum. They scratch and break the sealed surface, providing lodging for dirt and making subsequent cleaning more difficult. Use furniture cups, large surface castors or pads under heavy furniture. Broken castors and small metal slides groove the floors and permanently scar them. Chair and furniture legs should be flat, smooth and free from sharp edges.
